ReliaTech helps Bay Area computer users celebrate year-end Holidays.

November 22, 2008, San Pablo – ReliaTech, the Bay Area’s nonprofit computer support organization, is offering some great deals to celebrate the Holidays and a year of accomplishments.

ReliaTech is the social enterprise of The Stride Center, a leader in training low-income adults to become computer technicians. ReliaTech offers carry-in and on-site computer repair and upgrade services from three locations in the Bay Area – its headquarters in San Pablo, a location in San Francisco and the newest, at the OTX West facility in West Oakland.

This Holiday season marks the accomplishment of several goals at ReliaTech. CEO Ben Delaney explained. “I was asked to take the reins in January, with the mandate to increase ReliaTech’s business. That’s important because the income ReliaTech generates helps the Stride Center train more people to take well-paid jobs in the technology sector. I am pleased to announce that as we end the year, ReliaTech revenue is up more than 30% over last year.

“In addition,” Delaney said, “ReliaTech has launched a great new website, which includes easy navigation, information on all of our services, a section on the importance of re-using computers, and a home-page news feed with constant updates of technology tips and news.

“Adding to our success is our great staff, all Stride Center graduates, and certified technicians, and our interns, students who earn money as they learn the day-to-day skills needed to excel as computer technicians.”

To share its good fortune and to make the holiday season a bit easier in these hard times, ReliaTech is offering great celebratory offers throughout December. New and existing customers may request a 15% discount off any single service that month. Or, they can receive a 15% discount on a Gold Star Certified Renewed Computer. To receive these great deals, customers simply need to download a free coupon on the ReliaTech website at www.ReliaTech.org.

ReliaTech offers special discounts to nonprofits, and supports dozens of for-profit and non-profit organizations throughout the Bay Area with its Managed Service program, which offers pro-active preventative maintenance that can eliminate most computer problems before they occur.
